Adam Fitzgerald is a poet, editor, essayist and educator. In 2013, his first book of poems The Late Parade was hailed by the New York Times Sunday Book Review as “a new and welcome sound in the aviary of contemporary poetry.” In 2015, he became contributing editor for Literary Hub where he curates monthly poetry features. Recent poems can be found in Poetry, The New Yorker, and elsewhere. Co-founder of The Home School, he has also taught at Rutgers University, New York University, Columbia University, and this past spring at Poets House. His newest book of poems, George Washington, was published by W. W. Norton’s historic Liveright imprint in September, 2016.

The C.K. Williams Reading Series showcases senior thesis students of the program in Creative Writing and features established writers as special guests. The series is named in honor of the late Pulitzer Prize and National Book Award-winning poet C.K. Williams, who served on Princeton’s Creative Writing faculty for 20 years.
